

ARGOSY UNIVERSITY

Chicago Campus President

Change, by definition means to transform, to switch, to modify, to alter. Although change is not always easy it is often necessary and provides exciting, and sometimes unexpected opportunities.

In the February newsletter you read about a significant change for the campus. Dr. Ronald Kimberling left the campus to pursue another exciting opportunity within the field of education. Dr. Kimberling's career spanned more than three decades of high-level, varied management and executive experience in various sectors of higher and postsecondary education, including eight years of service in the U.S. Department of Education, where he rose to the position of U.S. Assistant Secretary for Postsecondary Education. As campus president, he led many significant initiatives for the campus. When asked what they will miss the most about Dr. Kimberling, faculty and staff responded with qualities and behavior such as, "his personality, his strong leadership, and of course his wonderful songs and stories".

As we move forward, we bid fond farewell and many thanks to Dr. Kimberling. As we do so, we also welcome back, Dr. Michael Falotico, as our new campus president

Dr. Falotico joined the University in 2005 as Program Chair for Undergraduate Studies here at the Chicago campus. Since that time, he has held positions of progressive responsibility in both academics and operations. Most recently, Dr. Falotico has served as Vice President of Academic Operations and Student Services for the Argosy University system. In addition to these responsibilities, he also served as Acting Campus President at two campuses.

Prior to coming to Argosy University, Dr. Falotico practiced as a clinical therapist, providing inpatient treatment in the corrections system. He holds a PsyD in Clinical Psychology and an MA in Counseling Psychology from the Adler School of Professional Psychology. He earned his BS in Psychology from Central Michigan University.

Argosy University, Chicago welcomes Dr. Falotico back to the campus, and we look forward to many productive years with him as our leader.
